Substantive Principles

Campbell McLachlan, QC, Barrister, Essex Court Chambers, Professor, Victoria University of Wellington, Laurence Shore, Solicitor, Partner, Herbert Smith and Matthew Weiniger, Solicitor, Partner, Herbert Smith

- The first modern work on the substantive law applied in investment treaty arbitration
- Provides a detailed analytical survey of the substantive principles of international law applied by Investment Arbitration Tribunals, and a clear and comprehensive description of the present state of the law
- Key areas of coverage include: the instruments under which investment disputes arise; the legal basis of treaty arbitration; dispute resolution and parallel proceedings; who is a foreign investor, including nationality issues and foreign control; what is an investment; investors' substantive rights including fair and equitable treatment; expropriation; compensation and remedies.
- The first book in a major new series from OUP on International Arbitration

International Investment Arbitration: Substantive Principles provides the first modern detailed analytical survey of the developing substantive principles of international law which are being applied to disputes by international investment tribunals. It considers the key questions that arise, and provides a clear description of the present state of the law as reflected in tribunal practice.

As the volume of international investment arbitration grows, international law firms are increasingly having to acquire expertise in all aspects of this specialised and rapidly developing field. Written by a leading author team from Herbert Smith, and benefiting from the public and private International law experience of Professor Campbell McLachlan, this book is an essential reference work for international arbitration counsel, arbitrators, and academics.
